FOR RECITAL HERE Great Belgian Violinist to Be Heard Again in Slater Hall Concert Course.

The management of the Slater hall concerts takes much pleasure in announcing to the people of Norwich and vicinity that they have been able, after considerable negotiation, to make a contract with Eugene Ysaye, the world famous violinist, for a recital fin Slater hall on Friday evening, April 18. This they recard as a signal trial are 18. This they regard as a signal triumph in the interests of the music lovers of the community, as the great Belgian artist is in such demand that this (Monday) afternoon. he commands a guarantee that few cities the size of Norwich can afford to give. There is, however, a little sentiment intermingled with the professional view of the matter and as Mr. Ysaye has very pleasant recollections of his former visit to Norwich some eight years ago, it is very prob-able that this feeling influenced him to urge his manager to include this city in his itinerary for his tour in this

Archibald Mitchell had the pleasure enthusiastic receptions ever given a great artist as 3600 persons sat and stood through a fine programme which stood through a fine programme which 560 others could not purchase tickets to hear. His manager told Mr. Mitchell that Ysaye had given 27 concerts in New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City this season and every one was a big success. This record has never been equalled by any other violinist in the world. The great Belgian has improved since his last visit to this country eight years ago, and the critics all agree that he is the greatest violin virtuose of modern times. He has consented on the occasion of his recital in Norwich, to give as one of the numbers on his programme the Kruetzer in Norwich, to give as one of the numbers on his programme the Kruetzer sonata, op. 47 by Beethoven. This is one of the most beautiful compositions ever written for violin and piano and no violinist ever lived who played it better than does Ysaye, who is now at the senith of his powers.

Mr. Tsaye should receive a royal welcome upon his return visit to Norwich, not only because he is the world's supreme master of the violin, but because he has, perhaps at some sacri-

The Chains of An Oath, Overpowering Twe-reel Feature Today. Such a wealth of unexcelled acting naterial has never appeared on the Breed's screen, as is shown in the powerful program for today, fer anch names as Maurice Costello, Edith Btorey, Earl Williams, William Humphreys, Evelyn Dominicis, Lillian Walker and Roger Lytton all combine to make the bill of today one long to be remembered. The feature consisting of two reels, entitled, The Chains of an Oath, tells of a young Russian girl who, allured by the descriptions of America, wins her father's permission to go there, after she has taken eath that she will return in due time to become the bride of a man much folder than she, and to whom she has indecome engaged more by custom than by love. Arriving in America, she becomes in love with a fellow-countryman who has become Americanized, but remembering her eath, is prevented from marrying him and he follows Such a wealth of unexcelled acting but remembering her cath, is prevented from marrying him and he follows her to her native home, where the really sensational portion of the story is unfolded. Biograph Raffles appears also in a strong drama and there is a superb Vitagraph comedy. The big feature today has only been equalled by the well-remembered Vengeance of Durand, a late Breed success.

Walthour and the Princeton Girls at Davis Theatre.

Another feature show is billed for this theatre the first half of this week both in photoplays and vaudeville. Walthour and the Princeton Girls pre-Walthour and the Princeton Girls present a sensational acrobatic cycling act, two pretty girls and one man and they can do almost anything in the cycle line. Lewis and Chapin, the two looney kids, do a comedy singing, talking and dancing act, full of fun from beginning to end. Louis Granat, the whistling virtuoso, whistles everything from ragtime to opera. The feature photoplay in 2 reels is Sherlock Holmes in The Reygate Squire, produced under the personal direction of Sir A. Conan Doyle, and is a masterpiece in the motion picture art. Nearly every-Conan Doyle, and is a masterpiece in the motion picture art. Nearly everyone has read this great writer's works and his great character. Sherlock Holmes, is familiar to all. Another two reel feature is the Message in the Cocoanut produced by the Majestic company. A great dramatic story, telling how a young American is ship-wrecked on a cannibal island, how the message he sends inside a cocoanut is picked up on Coney Island, where a rescue ship is sent out for him, and his return to the shores of America again. A pretty love story is intermingled throughout this picture and is full of exciting incidents. Two good full of exciting incidents. Two good somedies complete the bill.

Special Lenten Feature at the Auditorium This Week.

The Auditorium has secured for the first three days of this week the most appropriate feature possible, The Crusaders. The contrast between this beautiful adaptation of Tasso's epic poem, Jerusalem Delivered, and some of the so-called criminal "features" is most vivid. The management wishes most vivid. The management wishes to state that there is nothing in the entire 4,000 feet of this picture to offend any denomination, as the film is not based on the Bible, but upon history, and if anyone cares to look it up they will find it all if they look for they will find it all if they look for the Crusaders of 1189, headed by God-frey De Bouillon and Richard Coeur De Leon, who captured the Holy City from the Turks. This film is even more magnificent than the famous Fall of magnificent than the ramous Fall of Troy and cost over $50,000 and more than a year to produce. The vaudeville features are headed by the most famous sketch in America, entitled, The End of the World. This sketch was first presented by David Warfield, and afterwards by Alexander Carr, in Wine, Woman and Song. The famous Hebrew comedy part is here presented by Meyer Harris and company, and if you hear anyone i "Toplitsky says, 'dot's enough'") will know they have seen the act.

POETRY

THE ROADWAY OF MY BEART

A big road circles round the world, sure fine it is and gay.
But the little boreen of my heart runs lone and far away;
'Tis winding over seas with many a sigh beset,
But, oh of all the roads I know it is the sweetest yet.

By common ways and common graves and common homes it goes;
But, ch, its beauty no one but the soul within me knows;
Its dawns are drenched with dews from heaven, its nights are tearful sweet.
And sometimes One long crucified walks there to guide my feet.

It leads me down by purple hills where fairies sport of nights. It shows me many a hawthern lane, the scene of dead delights; It clothes again with living grees faces laid away Beneath the cold of grass and mould, my road of yesterday.

Oh, twillt boreen of my heart, the world is vague and vast,
But you are holy with the baim of all my hallowed past:
You thrill me with the touch of bands my hands were wont to hold.
You lure me with the lilt of dreams I dreamed and lost of old. The big road of the world leads on by many a stately town,
But the little boreen of my heart keeps ever drifting down
By common ways and common graves and common homes, but, ob,
Of all the roads in life it is the sweetest road I know.

—T. C. Brayton, in Rosary Megazine,

From the poor room where I exist, A struggling Irish journalist, Working all hours for Grub Street pay To keep the hungry wolf away,

I look down on a bit of grass, A garden once, but now, alas, The flowers don't grow, I wonder why. This scrap of grass declines to die. When on the window-sill I lean, It cheers me, just that bit of gre Sometimes when looking down I It minds me of the Emerald Iste,

The garret lodger overhead Is fond of birds, or so he said, But keeps them caged until they die, Not fond enough to let them fly. I know he does not think—but hark! The carol of a prisoned lark, A cage, a bit of turf—poor thing, And yet it has the heart to sing.

O prisoned skylark, sing again!
Utter the joy, conceal the pain,
The bit of turf, the narrow cage,
These too have been my heritage.

The earliest attempt at sewing by machinery of which there is any authentic record was in 1755, in which years a machine was patented in England by Charles F. Weisenthal. In this machine the stitch was formed by a needle, having two points with an eye at mid-length, which passed completely through the goods in imitation of hand sewing

It is probable that the slow adoption of western methods by the Chinese people will eventually lead them to the use of baking powders. At present the Chinese use nothing of the sort. The most common form of food which corresponds to the bread and biscuit of the United States is an enormous cake of unleavened dough, baked on the top of a native stove or furnace, first on one side and then on the other, after the manner of griddle cakes.
